Welcome Message

The International Conference on Gastrointestinal Health in Food Animals will be held in Tarragona (Spain) April 19 to 22, 2027, with sessions, conferences, posters and business sessions.

The 2027 International Conference on Gastrointestinal Health in Food Animals will explore the mechanisms that govern intestinal function, resilience, and host-microbe interactions. As the field evolves beyond descriptive microbiome studies, this meeting emphasizes intestinal biology, mucosal immunology, and systems-level approaches that integrate physiology, nutrition, microbial ecology, welfare, and environmental influences.

We invite cutting-edge research that deepens our mechanistic understanding of the gut, identifies actionable pathways for improving animal health and performance, and advances translational solutions for modern production systems. Join leading researchers, veterinarians, nutritionists, students, and industry innovators for scientific dissemination, discussion, and collegial networking.

Sincerely,

Michael H. Kogut

Scientific Topics

1

Intestinal Biology & Physiology

Epithelial cell biology, barrier integrity and tight junction regulation; mucus layer structure function; nutrient absorption and transport physiology, stress physiology.

2

Microbial Ecosystems

Microbiome, Virome & Mycobiome: Microbial metabolites and host signaling; bacteriophage and viral influences on gut ecology; dysbiosis, ecological resilience, and recovery.

3

Nutrition-Host-Microbe Interactions

Functional feed ingredients, nutrient sensing and metabolic signaling; precision nutrition approaches; diet-driven modulation of intestinal biology and immunity.

4

Innate immune mechanisms; adaptive mucosal responses; immune development and early life programming.

Innate immune mechanisms; adaptive mucosal responses; immune development and early life programming. Interactions, vaccines, enteric pathogens and co infection dynamics; inflammation.

5

Systems Approaches, Modeling & Translational Science

Multi-omics integration (transcriptomics, metabolomics, spatialomics); computational modeling and systems immunology; AI-driven prediction and decision support; biomarker discovery and diagnostics.

6

Production Systems, Management & Welfare

Welfare-microbiome-immunity interactions; behavioral indicators of gut function and resilience; neuroimmune and gut-brain axis mechanisms; early life management and developmental programming; precision livestock farming tools for welfare and gut-related outcomes; sustainable production and welfare linked performance metrics.
